Overview

Julie A. Stockton advises clients in a broad range of labor and employment law matters, including discrimination, wage-and-hour, and employee misclassification. She represents clients in both single plaintiff and class action matters, where she is experienced handling all phases of litigation, including trial and appeal in both state and federal courts. Julie also counsels clients on a variety of issues involving data security, including incident response, cybersecurity and risk management. She has advised clients in the banking industry, consumer-facing companies, and health-care service providers.

She was a post-graduate legal fellow of the UC Hastings – UCSF Consortium, where she analyzed the impact of litigation on the staffing practices of large for-profit nursing home chains.

Prior to law school, Julie worked for a multi-national real estate development company in Nicaragua. She appeared as the company representative before Nicaraguan government officials at hearings regarding the company's compliance with Nicaraguan employment laws. During college, Julie studied abroad in Costa Rica.

Julie is committed to dedicating a portion of her practice to pro bono legal services and received the California State Bar Wiley W. Manuel Certificate for her pro bono legal services in 2015 and 2016.
