Overview

Liran Messinger represents employers in state and federal court, as well as in administrative proceedings, in all aspects of employment law, including discrimination, harassment, retaliation, and wage and hour matters. In addition to her litigation practice, Liran devotes a portion of her practice to counseling employers on a wide range of employment matters. Liran has a particular interest in conducting internal workplace investigations and providing advice and counsel to employers regarding their inclusion, equity, and diversity initiatives.

During law school, Liran served as a full-time judicial extern to Magistrate Judge Stewart D. Aaron in the Southern District of New York and represented clients as a student attorney in the Boston University School of Law Housing, Employment, Family and Disability Clinic. She also interned with the New York State Office of the Attorney General, served as a research assistant, and was a member of the Public Interest Law Journal. Liran graduated with Honors in the Concentration in Litigation and Dispute Resolution.
