Overview

Pablo Pedrajas is the managing partner of Abdón Pedrajas Littler's labor tax practice. He has extensive experience advising numerous national and international companies in the design and implementation of their labor tax policies and strategies.

He also has a considerable background advising on tax issues arising from expatriations, severance pay and flexible compensation plans.

Pablo combines his activity as a lawyer with that of a university professor. He is a regular speaker at legal-taxation training courses. Pablo is completing a Doctorate at the U.C.M. in the program Current Problems of Law Financial and Taxation, and he is working on his thesis on International Taxation of Sportsmen and Artists.
