Overview

Pierre-Joseph Noebes represents and counsels employers in a broad range of employment matters arising under federal and state law.

While in law school, Pierre clerked for an administrative law judge in the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's Federal Hearings Unit. He also worked as a legal intern for a workers' compensation defense firm in the Atlanta area and summered as a legal intern for a large email marketing service, handling a variety of contract, intellectual property, employment and data security issues.

Pierre was the editor-in-chief of the Georgia State University Law Review, a member of the Moot Court Board and competed in the 2016 Georgia Intrastate Moot Court Competition. During his third year of law school, he helped teach second-year law students trial advocacy skills as a litigation associate for the Georgia State University College of Law Trial Advocacy Program.
