Overview

Roger L. Grandgenett advises and represents employers in all aspects of labor and employment matters before the trial courts and courts of appeals, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Nevada Equal Rights Commission, the National Labor Relations Board and Employee Management Relations Board, as well as the Department of Labor and the Nevada Labor Commissioner and in arbitration. His practice includes:

- Federal and state litigation
- Trial, arbitration, appellate advocacy and administrative proceedings
- Mediation
- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act
- The Americans with Disabilities Act
- The Age Discrimination in Employment Act
- State anti-discrimination laws
- The Family and Medical Leave Act
- Wrongful termination
- Issues regarding the Occupational Safety and Health Administration
- Fair Labor Standards Act and state wage and hour issues
- Breaches of collective bargaining agreements

- Contract interpretation and employee discipline disputes

Roger also gives general advice and opinions addressing labor and employment compliance and issues. He most commonly works with clients in the hospitality, construction, and service industries.

Roger has worked as an adjunct professor at the Community College of Southern Nevada, where he taught classes on civil procedure and administrative law. He also served as publications editor for Communique and the Clark County Bar Journal. He is certified as a Professional in Human Resources.

Prior to joining Littler, Roger worked for six years as law clerk/attorney for small boutique labor and employment law firm in downtown Las Vegas. In law school, he was a staff writer for the Kansas Journal of Law and Public Policy.
