Overview

Barry Reynolds has been advising on Irish employment for more than 20 years. He advises both global and local clients across various sectors and has significant inhouse experience in the financial services sector. Barry has extensive experience of advising Boards and partnering with senior management, including to resolve sensitive and urgent disputes, advise strategically on internal processes and on the employment aspects of transactions. He has practiced in two of Ireland's largest commercial firms, and most recently led the Dublin employment team of an international firm.

Barry is recognized in the Legal 500 EMEA guide and clients say: "Barry Reynolds is a stand-out partner in the employment field. Barry has a very approachable manner but is also an excellent negotiator who will go the extra mile to ensure the right outcome for his client." He is acknowledged as a leading lawyer in the Ireland employment law arena by Chambers Europe 2023 as "extremely proactive and accessible.... and commercially aware", "particularly strong in the discreet resolution of sensitive disputes", "robust, fair on both parties and immune to challenge" and clients say, "Barry is always responsive and delivers his advice and guidance with a flair for commercial considerations."
