Overview

Bart Franceus advises international and domestic companies on all matters concerning Belgian and European individual and collective employment law, as well as compensation and pensions law.

Bart's practice particularly focuses on assisting clients with respect to internal investigations, employee data protection, employment litigation, occupational pensions and the employment-related aspects of strategic business projects and M&A transactions. He has extensive experience advising listed companies, financial institutions and insurance companies on corporate and remuneration governance matters.

Before joining Littler Belgium, Bart worked at a Belgian law firm specializing in employment law, followed by another global law firm.
