Overview

Bartłomiej Raczkowski started the first modern employment law practice in Poland in the 1990s. He has more than three decades of experience counseling employers in Poland and worldwide on a variety of workplace matters, including restructurings, employee dismissals, labor relations and discrimination claims. He also advises employers on employment contracts, internal policies and compliance with regulations impacting the workplace.

A recognized leader in the European labor and employment community, Raczkowski previously served as Chair of the European Employment Lawyers Association, is the founder and first President of the Labour Law Association, and a founding member of the Labour Law Section of the Warsaw District Bar, as well as holding membership roles in several other legal organizations.

For nearly 20 years, Bartłomiej has been qualified in Band 1 (Tier 1) in all renowned international and Polish legal rankings, including The Legal 500 EMEA, Chambers & Partners and Who is Who Legal, Rzeczpospolita, Forbes.

He is the author of numerous articles and publications on labor law.
