Overview

Throughout all stages of litigation, Brandon Miller drafts mediation briefs, dispositive motions, various types of pleadings, and engages directly with clients. He also develops and reviews employer policies and procedures in response to state and federal legislative changes. Brandon is skilled in alternative dispute resolution, including negotiations, arbitrations and mediations. This experience is pivotal to securing the best outcomes for the employers he represents and defends in these proceedings.

Born and raised in a small, family-owned California business, Brandon knows firsthand the difficulties and obstacles that many employers face. He leans on that knowledge to counsel employers on reducing turnover, boosting retention, staying apprised of current labor laws and taking proactive steps to avoid future litigation and potential labor code violations. He strives to understand core issues and priorities affecting his clients' businesses in order to reach the best and most practical solutions.
