Overview

Stephanie Goutos leads Littler's firmwide AI strategy and governance, guides the responsible adoption of AI internally across all practice areas, and partners closely with firm leadership on the use of AI solutions to serve clients. A former class action litigator with nearly 15 years of employment law experience, she brings a practitioner's perspective to the intersection of AI and legal services.

Stephanie's background includes a combination of deep employment law knowledge, practical experience leading firmwide AI initiatives and deploying AI solutions inside major law firms, and a sophisticated understanding of AI governance. She previously served as head of employment law practice innovation with another international law firm.

Stephanie is also a leading voice on the topics of legal innovation and AI governance, authoring several influential articles.
